I have used Glass Guru for a few different projects and they have been professional and courteous. The window they fixed looks great and I plan on having them back soon for other projects.

Had the salesman come out to examine all my windows and advise of which seals were broke and needing replaced. First he couldn't measure one "half-round" because it was up too high. So a second appt was needed. Second, he missed one in my dinette that I now have to stare at all fogged up every morning. If he had caught it, it would look as good as all the others they did. The work that was done, really does look great!

The owner came to give us an estimate, by himself with no ladder, and expected us to assist him in getting up on a second story roof. While the main installer was very helpful and professional, the person who was supposed to help him showed up an hour late, so he continued the work by himself. After the first rain, one skylight started leaking. It was successfully repaired within two days. They do not do their work in a safe and professional manner. The customer service person put off my complaints saying that only the owner could handle it. He has never contacted me to discuss our dissatisfaction.

I felt a high level of confidence in GG from the moment a received a call from the scheduler for my appointment with a sales person to review my problems. The installation team were professional. One large section of glass that was installed was wavy and offered distorted views. I called, they made a complaint to the manufacturer and within 3 weeks we had a new piece of glass. I felt we received great service.

Friendly and knowledgeable staff, only took about two weeks to get glass ordered and installed. Much cheaper and faster to replace glass only, rather than replacing entire window fittings. However after the installer left, we noticed several light scratches on two of the four installed glass. Appears the scratches are from transit or handling in the warehouse? I emailed the office 5 days ago, but have not heard back yet. Not sure we want to deal with ordering, waiting and scheduling the installation of new windows, but dont feel we should pay full price for scratched new glass. If they contact me to make this right, I would change my recommendation to 5 stars, but this is a blemish on the quality of product.

My Glass Guru tech dropped two HUGE slabs of glass off of his truck as he pulled out of my driveway. He pulled over to see what happened, fixed the rest of the glass on his truck and kept going. The amount of glass left behind was astronomically A LOT and should have been cleaned up instead of him just taking off like nothing happened. I had to call and report what happened and they sent the tech back out the next day around the same time but by then two of the older men in my neighborhood had gotten together and cleaned it up. When the tech asked what happened and I explained my neighbors did the nice thing and fixed his mess so no ones tires would get messed up he nastily replied that was impossible and left with an attitude. I wouldn't say don't use the Glass Guru I would just say make sure you hold their techs to the fire and make them do THEIR JOB.

The sales rep was great, and that is who we ended up dealing with in the end. The installer did not do a good job the first time around and showed a total lack of regard to the fact that a family lives in the home. Safety and care for our home was not shown. The problems were fixed in the end, but it was an ordeal to get there.
