I would like to recognize the head work that did the work both days. Also, my wife enjoyed working with Mr. Kincaid - I think his name was Jeff. He was very helpful, very knowledgeable, and really customer orientated. He seemed like he knew what was going on. You asked him a question and he knew the answer. He didn't have to go anywhere else.

I think the best thing I felt was that one of the individuals who actually did the work (the head person) was here both days they were here - he was very professional and courteous. I thought he was a really good guy and did a very good job.

At this time, no. I have an older sister and she hasn't come over to take a look at it, but I know she had a little bit of work done in one of her bathrooms. If she seemed interested or one of her other friends might be interested in having the same thing done, I would not hesitate to give them the company name.
