Frankly I wasn't impressed. They could have more strategically placed some floor water remediation pads where the majority of damage was. We had to listen to the equipment for 5 days because of the weekend (2 days) then holidays the next two days. (Plus the first day). We didn't dare turn it off because it's timed and we didn't want to risk the insurance company thinking we were not trying to address the problem.

They handled everything from moving furniture out, mold remediation, drying everything out, and helping us get everything back in. They did a wonderful job helping us stay on track, so we knew what we needed to do to keep the project moving. Furthermore, they were good at communicating. They offered to meet with me if I had to sign anything. They ended up bringing everything to me. I didn't have to go out of my way, which was very nice and helpful.

The initial water mitigation was great. The response and communication was great. Once they started the work on the repairs, I wasn't happy at all with the project manager and contractor. He doesn't respond to me at all anymore. There were others issues. He completed most of the work and some other stuff was supposed to be supplemented, but it never happened. He never got back to me.

The company put my kids in jeopardy, with the fans blowing dust and fiberglass. The room was not contained only when they removed cabinets. They contained the fiberglass and dust. Due to this neglect, my son had horrible allergies and he couldn't go to school because his eyes were swollen. Plus, we were all sneezing. We ate and stayed upstairs.

The problem I had with them, was that they submitted the paperwork only for the part they had finished so they could be paid. I told them to make sure it was done, and I signed it. Make sure you do not sign anything until it has all been done, and don't send in the entire paperwork.

Service Master out of Tyler was the mitigation contractor that was assigned to our water loss claim. They came out to the house 3 or more times for mitigation purposes because each of the previous times they came out all of the water/mold issues were not addressed properly. At the end of the day, there were was still water loss and mold in our house from this incident that should have been addressed by Service Master, but was not. In my contacts with the Insurance Company they said that the Service Master representative had effectively stopped communicating with them when they tried to contact them about finishing the water remediation on this claim. I would not recommend Service Master out of Tyler to anyone I know for water remediation purposes based on this experience!Homeowner

They did a good job of removing the drywall and the ceiling that had been exposed to moisture and mold. However, they did put any plastic or tarps over it, which allowed more moisture and mold to get in after they left.
