We interviewed 3 different contractors for our project. We chose Deimler because they came up with a great, creative solution to meet our needs. Overall the workmanship and communication is good. Our job site could have been kept a bit cleaner/safer. That said, we are really happy with the work they did. Super nice people. I really can't say that enough. Absolutely everyone involved with our project was so nice. They were happy to answer any questions we had.

Our kitchen project has turned out top notch. Deimler Construction worked with a sloped floor and other obstacles and was attentive to our concerns throughout the construction process. Craig Deimler offered valuable insight during our "selection" day - which entailed visiting multiple locations. Deimler Constuction also installed a "temporary" sink for us during a holiday weekend when the sink we selected was back ordered. Also - when Craig did a site visit close to the end of the project he recommended different color devices and outlet covers for our back splash area and had his crew install them for no additional charge. The only area needing improvement is communication - especially returning calls/texts/ or commmunicating on the "Builder Trend" website - but we are very satisfied with our new kitchen and will refer Deimler Construction when the opportunity arises.

We feel like we possibly could've gotten the job done cheaper if we had shopped around more. However, we'd also rather pay for quality and we have no complaints about the work that was done; there's no telling what the end result may have been with another company. We're very satisfied with the work done and the overall experience was certainly positive.

A project that we were told would be done in less than 2 weeks took 3 months. We never knew when they would show up. Phone calls were not returned.

We had used them before and were happy with them, so we used them again. We liked the design. We gave them a confined area in which they had to modify things to get them how we wanted. They did better at achieving what we had in mind than we expected.

I really don't think Deimler fell short at all. It was just one substitute tradesperson who was so unprofessional. I know Craig spoke with the owner of that company so that is good for your subsequent customers.

We think that the Deimler team did an outstanding job in building our deck. We were super impressed both with the professional way the plans were handled and how we had several on site visits with Dave to check in. Our building team was so meticulous, it was a joy to see them work. We could not be more pleased and are happy to recommend this awesome local business to our friends.

Joe was always willing to listen to our concerns. He answered our questions and made adjustments when we asked. We were able to be involved in the project without any issue from all the staff. Craig was available when needed, he offered good suggestions when we were making initial plans. Also helpful when issues came up. Very pleased with the (very much needed) basement railing Joe installed and he added a nice touch to the post.

This was the first time we needed to hire a construction team for renovations. My husband always did additions, new garage and remodeling. Knowing our limitations now, we chose Deimler on the recommendation of a friend who was satisfied with their work. We are very happy with the finished project and would recommend them to others.

Deimler & Sons Construction did an overall superior job with our kitchen remodel and the workmanship was excellent. The project ran 9 weeks from start to finish but the contractors and tradespeople did a great job of keeping the job site neat and clean and household interruptions to a minimum. The site manager communicated very well, kept us informed at all times, and took immediate action to address any questions or concerns. We are extremely well pleased with the end product and feel we received good value for the money. Deimler & Sons Construction demonstrated the skill and experience necessary to successfully complete a project of this scope on time and on budget. We would definitely call them back for other projects in the future and are comfortable recommending them to anyone.
