We felt that our previous experience and they're reputation were enough for us to decide to choose Greth, but in hindsight we regret this decision.

Greth Homes built my house in 2014 and I recently contracted with them to build a roof over my deck. Both projects were completed on time and on budget. I am completely satisfied with the price and high quality of both projects. Very professional.

We are very pleased with the construction of our "new" home. If you didn't know, you would never know it was an addition.

When my wife and I started looking for a home to "age in place," we had certain and non-negotiable requirements; one story; laundry room off the garage leading into the kitchen; enlarged garage; large building lot. We looked for an existing house to meet our criteria for several years. We never found it because there was always a catch. At the time our real estate agent told us you never get more than 80% of what you want regardless if your are buying old or building brand new. One day, out of curiosity, we stopped and talked to Brandon at Greth Homes. As we followed Brando through the process we soon realized this might just work. After we found our 2 acre lot at Antietam Watch we signed on, and the rest, as they say, is history. However, when we started telling family and close friends we were building a new home at age 60, they all thought we were crazy. I was even asked "Do you have a death wish?" And then we started second guessing ourselves. It did not take us long to realize that these Greth people knew what they are doing and it was certainly not "their first rodeo." The building of our home from the first shovel of dirt until we were handed the key was absolutely stress free. Sharon and I cannot thank Brandon, John, George and especially Bob for their guidance, wisdom, and most of all professionalism during the building of a home we though we could never have!~

I am pleased with the home, disappointed with the company completely refusing to address hail storm damage received prior to settlement.

We were very satisfied with the planning and construction phases of the building process. However, the customer service follow-up was not as timely or efficient.
