While the sub-contractors Blue Ribbon uses are excellent in their job, we were very impressed and appreciative of our project manager, Rusty. He kept us in the loop the whole project as to timing of trades and any problems that arose or might arise. Moreover, we came to value his opinion for choices such as stain and paint colors, and many other things. He was also very innovative and creative during the construction process, and presented us with options for things we were requesting be done. Additionally, John Devlin, our initial contact, was very easy to work with on designing our project and helping us understand what to expect. His thoroughness prepared us so there were no surprises.

Blue Ribbon Construction Company does not sugar coat anything. They will tell you upfront if you are at the high end of choices, middle of the road, or lower end. John came in we gave him our idea's, he took that and worked up a few possibilities , we worked through them until we had what found what we liked, based on those choices John and Kathy then put together material choices, and then we had the big meeting in my home with those who would be performing various tasks. At this point I have been Very Satisfied with the process. Give me a couple of months, and I'll let you know how the Construction team performed, and my thoughts on the final product. I Highly Recommend Blue Ribbon Residential Construction, to everyone.

We are almost compete on the remodel of the lower floor of our home. Taking on a project this size was quite daunting but we felt in good hands from the our first meeting with John. Blue Ribbon navigated us through the process offering professional and practical guidance from the initial selection of finishes and materials to the more complex structural decisions. On a project of this size it meant we had numerous trade professionals working in our home so it was reassuring to have the expertise of our Project Manager, Chevy to keep things on track and running smoothly. As with any remodel of an older home we hit a few bumps in the road with unexpected issues. These were all handled efficiently and with consideration to minimise impact to our budget and the timeline of the project. We did run over our anticipated completion time but we feel this was with the best of intention to ensure quality of work was not in any way compromised. There a are many construction companies to choose from. We did our homework with lots of research and are so happy with our choice of Blue Ribbon Construction. We will return to them when we are ready to tackle other areas of our home.

Working with Blue Ribbon Construction on our porch/deck project was an excellent experience. They met, and in many cases exceeded our expectations. The subcontractors were very good, very professional, and responsive to all questions and comments. The project tracking software being used by Blue Ribbon Construction allows the customer to watch the schedule, and also monitor change orders. With this capability there was never any question about who was responsible for changes, and modifications. Their construction contract clearly spelled out what was to be invoiced and when. This made cost tracking very easy and eliminated any possible disputes. During the project both the framing and electrical subcontractors made several excellent suggestions for changes that enhanced the overall look of the final porch/deck construction. Friends who have stopped by since the project was finished have been very complimentary about the final outcome. We have no doubt that the project has added considerable value to our house. We would not hesitate to use Blue Ribbon Construction for future projects.
