H&P did quite well. We had a difficult renovation, made more complicated by an unrealized plumbing issue. Ken Hurdle and his crew adapted a very novel approach to dealing with the plumbing issue. Solid work. Very professional (including the subcontractors). Much appreciated H&P.

Hopkins & Porter shows incredible attention to detail. I really feel they are looking out for me to make sure everything is done right. They insist on correcting even the smallest imperfection. And when I have raised a concern, they are very responsive. On top of that, they come up with very creative design ideas.Bottom line: I would not hesitate to hire Hopkins & Porter for future projects.

We were very happy with Hopkins & Porter. Everyone was very professional, responsive and nice. The whole process beginning from initial discussion with Kelly to finishing the punch list with Ray and the crew was very pleasant. We have never done any home improvement projects before, so this was very very good first experience. Kelly was very responsive and spent a lot of time patiently explaining the pros/cons of all the materials and different options before we started the project, so we stayed within the budget. The crew was very polite and worked quickly. Ray came out regularly and inspected everything many times, he was very detail-oriented and when the job was done he was very thorough pointing out little things that needed to be fixed. The crew was very professional and asked and offered several solutions that we didn't think about. They did a great job on both of our projects. Overall, we were very very happy with Hopkins & Porter. When we do our next home improvement project, we definitely will call them back! And from now on, we will use the handyman

Todd McPhee, the project manager for my kitchen renovation, has been dependable, respectful, on time, and always eager to meet my expectations for the work being done. He has proven himself most valuable at finding workable and creative solutions to various construction-related problems (far exceeding my expectations). His main workman, Juan, is also hard-working, dependable and knowledgable about most jobs related to construction and/or repair work. Because of my excellent experience with Todd and Juan, I have been recommending Hopkins & Porter to all my friends and anyone I meet who is planning a home renovation project.

This is the third time we have used Hopkins & Porter for sizeable projects at our house. We keep using this firm because of its attention to detail, fair treatment of clients, and superior workmanship. We also appreciate the fact that the office staff, Todd McPhee, and the workers who have been at our house have all been uniformly responsive, courteous, and professional.

Hopkins & Porter Construction was very professional. They were very easy to talk to in terms of any changes that needed to be made or things that I did not feel were working in the plan. They always communicated very well withme about things that may have had to be delayed or changes that had to be made. The workmanship was excellent and I would definitely use them again. I would certainly recommend them to anyone else. I know that in this area of Washington D.C. there are a wide range of prices in terms of design/build companies. Hopkins & Porter Construction is certainly not the cheapest, but they are not the most expensive. They are very professional. Also, I hate pushy salesmen, but they were very easygoing about doing things. That is a manner in which I like to work.

Modernizing our 1955 kitchen, improving a bathroom and repairing fairly substantial water damage in the basement all in one fell swoop involved the coordinated efforts of a carpenter, plumber, electrician, painter and floor installer. The Hopkins and Porter division of Handymen Operations provided a skilled team to accomplish our project. The team's extremely competent and flexible leader made our project a smoothly-run success. We are pleased to endorse this excellent firm.

Hopkins and Porter and the two fellows I had the most contact with, Todd and Juan, are superior in their skills, timely on their work promises, clean all along the way with the job, kind in their manner and I miss having their presence with me daily. Would love to show possible clients H&P's work at my house. Anne J.

We had a marvelous experience with Hopkins & Porter Handymen. They provide high quality workmanship, they are professional, and they are just generally pleasant people to work with. In particular, what we valued was the customer service aspect. Ours was not an overly complex build; we probably could have gotten similar work done at a similar price by another company. However, the customer service we received from our foreman, our architect, the subcontractors, and everyone we worked with throughout the process was outstanding. We would highly recommend them.

We called Hopkins & Porter because we saw a serious problem in the deterioration of a porch. It took engineering and design skills to fix the porch because it holds up a roof. They came out within a day and within three days they did the work. We feel very comfortable about the work that they did for us.
